

Billiardai

Antracite

In Search of Perfection we finally found one! Decotech is a functional design that flirts with the future interiors. Decotech will deconstruct your past perception of massive and old-school billiard tables and will bring you into the future. Don't be deceived by the light dining table construction since underneath it hides billiard table fulfilling highest game standards. Ball collecting system makes the process of the game smooth and uninterrupted.

Now literally anyone can have the pleasure of the game since the Decotech has been specially designed for a person who uses a wheelchair as well. Nevertheless, its universal design allows to enrich any modern interior or quite contrary to bring contemporary feeling into more classical space. Table top holder, specially designed to match the table, allows you to flawlessly enjoy the game any time you want. Forget about the old-fashioned cue and ball holdings since now you can store your cues under the table top and put the balls under the table.

For the times that you do not feel like playing billiard, we constructed a table tennis net, which fits perfectly your dining table's top. The drawer at the end of the table is for you to store the net, rackets and balls.

Billiard table Decotech designed by Lithuanian designer Irtas Žmuida.

Billiardai

Golden

Rust

Deconstructivism – a movement, which appeared and spread in West Europe and United States at the beginning of ninth decade. Its founder Jacques Derrida – famous 20th century French philosopher and deconstructivism theory pioneer. Deconstruct generally means break, take it to pieces and construct it from scratches once again. The idea behind it suggests that we are able to see the world from a different angle, we just have to get rid of stereotypes and presumptions. This is why one of the golden postmodernism canons encourages us to accept the fact that all unusual, unique and not familiar to our eyes solutions have a right to appear in any sphere of our life (including fashion).

Design Functionality/Functional Design

- Solutions that make user experience flawless
- Solutions that fade the table into your interior
- Designed for a wheelchair (eliminates discomfort for a person who uses a wheelchair)
- Movement inspired constructions
- Dining option (eliminates the need of extra space for a billiard table)
- Thin and light table constructions
- Table top holder (allows flawlessly enjoy the game any time you want)
- Multiple furnishing options
- Table tennis net for the dinning table top (allows to enjoy a new game without any additional tops)
- Numerous coloring combinations
- Drawer at the end of the table (to store the net holders, rackets and balls)
- Ball collecting system (makes the process of the game smooth and uninterrupted)
- Cue holder under the table top (fully transforms billiard table into the dinning table)
- Ball holdings system underneath the table (stores the equipment without up taking additional space)

DESIGN TABLES

Design Functionality / Functional Design

In Search of Perfection
Since 1994